

AUTOBIOGRAPHY

My name is Do Phuoc Bao Long. I was born on June 30th, 2000, in a city known as Bao Loc City, Vietnam, which is famous for its coffee. My family isn't wealthy, but my parents have always tried their best to provide me with a good life. I am the eldest son in my family, and I have a younger brother who is only 12 years old. My mother is a teacher of English. She teaches at a secondary school in our district, while my father is a farmer who takes care of coffee trees to produce delicious coffee beans.

My childhood was filled with immense happiness. I was taught to be independent from a young age. I had a loving family, great friends, and an excellent school. I enjoy learning, particularly in the field of natural sciences. I also like participating in extracurricular activities such as soccer, volleyball, and swimming. I graduated with a degree in Mechatronics Engineering Technology from a university in the second-largest city of Vietnam, known as Ho Chi Minh City University of Technology and Education.

I have always had a passion for exploration since I was a child. I've maintained that habit, and I can spend hours discovering new things in life. My mother always advises to do good things and an impressive saying that she told me is "The relationships around you reflect who you are." This made me realize that education not only broadens my knowledge but also helps me develop myself providing opportunities to connect and exchange ideas with are more accomplished than myself and contribute meaningfully to society.

Therefore, I decided to study abroad in Taiwan. I believe that Taiwan offers advanced and high-quality education. I also want a chance to experience a new culture and learn more about the people of Taiwan.

I've done some research about Taiwan before making this decision. I know that Taiwan is a beautiful country with stunning natural landscapes. I'm aware that it's a country with diverse and rich cultural traditions. I am excited to explore all of these aspects when I arrive in Taiwan.

I believe that studying in Taiwan will be an invaluable experience. I will have an opportunity to learn in an advanced educational environment, experience a new culture, and develop myself further. I am really looking forward to studying and living in Taiwan soon.
